

Drouth Aid Should Be State-Wide; Time for Self-Help Too

Last week the Drouth Subcommittee of the Senate Agriculture Committee toured part of Arkansas while inspecting dry conditions generally in the South. According to an AP dispatch in The Star at least one of our state bankers was pretty outspoken about federal policy.

W. A. Stone of Helena, president of the Arkansas Bankers' association, said after attending one of the hearings that an alarming number of second mortgages are being placed against farms simply because the operators are too crippled by the drouth to carry on through the winter otherwise.

This is the second consecutive dry year, and Mr. Stone reports that the bankers feel all 75 counties should be included in federal drouth aid — not just selected areas.

It is likely, of course, that the federal people are being guided to a certain extent by rainfall records, but as anyone on the scene knows the timing of a rain is more important than the quantity. Arkansas' trouble this year is that she got too much rain in April and May, none in June, a lot in certain areas during July, and very little in August and September.

On the face of it, a dry June means disaster for early crops — regardless what the total rainfall figures show for the year to date.

Drouth is a natural disaster that has a deserved claim for help from government, just as in cases of flood or tornado. And while we feel we are lucky compared to the country farther west, still we have been damaged appreciably. I believe any on-the-spot check, such as the senate subcommittee is now making, will support the position that the state for drouth relief purposes should be treated as a single unit.

Our home folks, however, ought to make a couple of resolutions themselves. The man on the farm alone can't do anything about the weather's effect on crops and livestock; but a united people — town as well as countryside — can, and in some areas has whipped the perennial threat of drouth. But it requires great effort and the expenditure of vast sums of money. I think Arkansas people ought to resolve, first, to establish year-around water reserves on their rivers, and, second, utilize that water in an irrigated system of farming.

It doesn't make sense to stand still year after year under the cocked gun of the drouth threat and do nothing — while we claim we have more miles of navigable river than any state in the nation.

Currently, of course, we have an immediate opportunity to claim water rights in Millwood dam on Little river, a project authorized by congress but whose water reserves will be barred to us unless we act before construction is finally planned.

But Millwood is only one dam on one river. There will be others throughout the state, and wherever a dam is proposed all the people, both in town and on the farm, ought to be vigilant in claiming water rights — for the land of a state which is being neglected by its people as much as by the weather.

Murder Trial Results in a Hung Jury

Circuit Judge Lyle Brown dismissed a jury about 8 o'clock last night when it found itself hopelessly split on a verdict in a murder case.

The case involved James Ed Johnson, Negro, who is charged with the murder of William Hickman, a Negro, on May 16, 1953, about 3 miles east of Columbus. Hickman died from injuries in a fight, allegedly with Johnson.

Two Negroes, Murry Thompson and Glen Glover, served on the jury. The rest of the jury included Claude Tillery, Edward Rhinehart, Rush Jones, Paul O'Neal, Kenneth Hamilton, James Morrow, Bryant Bobo, Harry Phillips, Kinard Young and W. D. Mason.

The court continued in session today and is slated to take up another murder case involving T. Z. Jackson, Negro, of near Washington.

Retrial of Johnson will probably be passed until the January term of court.

Club Women Seeking Full Citizenship

An all-out effort to see that Congress approves the Equal Rights Amendment to the Constitution was the unanimous pledge of the 100 members of the Board of Directors of the National Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs, Inc., when they met in New York City, June 27 to July 1, this summer.

The amendment, introduced by Rep. Katherine St. George (NY) as HJ Res. 74 on January 3 and in the Senate by Sen. John Marshall Butler (Md) as SJ Res. 49, provides that "equality of rights under the law shall not be denied or abridged by the United States or by any state on account of sex."

It has been in and out of Congressional Committees in Washington for the last 30 years and the Federation has endorsed and worked towards its enactment since 1937.

Impetus for a more determined drive to achieve its passage followed review of the decision of the American Association of University Women, at their recent national convention, not to take any action on the Equal Rights Measure.

B&PW leaders, comprising the Board and including national officers, chairmen and presidents of 48 states, District of Columbia, Hawaii and Alaska, approved unanimously the resolution which called upon their 165,000 members to use "Every Available Resource" in pressing for approval "to give women full citizenship under the Constitution of the United States."

Supporting that action a special panel was conducted at the request of board members by Mrs. Isabelle J. Jones of Pittsburgh, Pa., National Legislation Chairman, to brief the leaders on a stepped-up plan for action.

Letters and wires to Congressmen and Senators urged immediate consideration of the amendment, and to move it for action in the Senate.

Democrat Is Winner in Wisconsin

ROKs Promise to Be Good on Eve of 'Brainwash'

By JAMES MORRISSEY
PANNUNJOM, Korea, (UP) — South Korea promised to behave when Red persuaders begin attempting tomorrow (6 o'clock EST tonight) to lure some 22,500 bulky prisoners back to Communism.

Dr. H. K. Karl, official government spokesman, said no attempts would be made to prevent Indian guards from escorting the anti-Communist North Koreans and Chinese to lecture booths built by American engineers.

The Communists notified the neutral nations repatriation commission they wanted to interview 1,000 men Thursday, beginning at 8 a.m., (6 p.m. EST Wednesday).

At the same time, the Communists reserved the right to have private "explanation" talks later.

The sessions are expected to last up to eight hours daily and will continue until Dec. 24, deadline set in the Korean armistice agreement.

Although South Korea promised not to interfere, allied observers expected trouble. The captives have been told they are required to appear either singly or in groups before the Communist "explaners" and hundreds have vowed to kill the persuaders.

Numerous threats against the Indians, pro-Communists, have been made by South Koreans in responsible positions.

But Karl said acting Foreign Minister Cho Chung Ilwan spoke without authority last week in saying South Korea might take up arms against the Indians.

Karl said Cho gave "merely an expression of personal views" which had caused South Korea's Allies and the Communists to fear the ROK government might wreck the truce.

South Korea, Karl said, "will not interfere with the implementation of the armistice terms so long as the conditions upon which the government agreed to the truce are met."

Reaction to Benson Plan Is Varied

By PATRICIA WIGGINS

WASHINGTON, (UP) — There was a mixed reaction today to Secretary Ezra T. Benson plan for overhauling the Agriculture Department to put more emphasis on marketing than on production.

Comments ranged all the way from a pat on the back from Sen. George D. Aiken (R-Vt.) to a condemnation from Sen. Olin D. Johnston (D-S.C.).

Aiken, chairman of the Senate Agriculture Committee, said Benson's plan "should give a maximum of service with a minimum of administrative cost."

"So far as I can see," he declared, "none of the functions now carried on by the department. . . will be reduced. They will simply be administered more efficiently and economically and in some cases with less delay."

Johnston differed sharply. He called the proposal a lot of "mouthwash," charged it would "harm the little fellow" and severed notice he would be "very much against it." Johnston also is an agriculture committee member.

In between these extremes were the bulk of farm experts who expressed themselves. They seem to be waiting to see how the reorganization will work out.

McFarlane, Former Arizona Senator, Is Hope Visitor

Former United States Senator Ernest W. McFarlane of Florence, Arizona, and Mrs. McFarlane, left Hope Tuesday after a three-day visit with Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Spencer in Hope.

The Spencers became acquainted with the McFarlanes when both men were in the United States Senate, McFarlane being majority leader. The Arizona man is now a nationally-known attorney.

The visitors arrived here last Sunday and were entertained by the Spencers here and at the Hemlock County Hunting club on Grassy lake before resuming their journey Tuesday.

The senator quoted the witness as saying he attended meetings of the Young Communist League with Rosenberg and that Rosenberg solicited him "repeatedly" to join the Communist Party.

The man, recently suspended by the Signal Corps, testified today at a closed meeting of McCarthy's senate permanent investigations committee which is proving into possible Communist subversion in the radar laboratory at Ft. Monmouth.

McCarthy said earlier today a number of top secret Army documents dealing with radar—the key in defense against atom bombs at—were being reviewed.

Talk or Get Fired, U. S. Workers Told

WASHINGTON, (AP) — President Eisenhower today made it a firing offense for government employees to refuse to testify before congressional committees on grounds of possible self-incrimination.

The President issued an executive order adding this to the existing grounds for dismissal of a federal worker for security reasons.

The order permits action against the individual for: "Refusal by the individual, upon the ground of constitutional privilege against self-incrimination, to testify before a congressional committee regarding charges of his alleged disloyalty or other misconduct."

White House Press Secretary James C. Hagerty said this was an effort to "close up all possible loopholes" in the government's security machinery.

He said Atty. Gen. Brownell would enlarge upon the fifth amendment question at a speech this afternoon at the National Press Club.

The timing of the order appeared to stem part from the current senate investigation of alleged security leaks from the Ft. Monmouth, N. J., Army Signal Corps laboratory.

Secretary of the Army Robert T. Stevens has been sitting in on the closed hearings in New York by Sen. McCarthy's (R-Wis) investigations subcommittee. Stevens said yesterday that any civilian employee of the Army who refused to answer questions on communism at the hearings would be "summarily suspended."

The President's order had the effect of giving full White House backing to Stevens' stand.

County Club Council Names New Officers

Mrs. H. E. Patterson, 505 South Edgewood, was elected president of the Hempstead County Council of Home Demonstration clubs at a meeting held Tuesday, October 13, in the City Hall auditorium.

Mrs. Patterson succeeds Mrs. Monroe Stuart, Route 1, Ozan. The other officers elected were: Mrs. David Waddle, Route 1, Emmet; Mrs. Arl Fincher, Route 2, Hope; secretary-treasurer; and Mrs. J. E. Delaney, Columbus, reporter. All officers will be installed at the Council Christmas party to be held Friday, December 4.

Featured on the program was Eula NaSangkla and Cheng Pinaruch, Foreign Exchange Students from Bangkok, Thailand, who are the cousins and habits of their native land. Mrs. William Schooley gave a report of the State Home Demonstration Council meeting, held in Little Rock in August.

Plans were made for the annual Harvest Festival to be held Tuesday night, November 10. The Baker Home Demonstration club is to be responsible for decorating the Exhibit Hall. Mrs. Glendon Huackbee, Melrose Club, Mrs. W. H. Light, Liberty Hill, Mrs. Ernest Ridgill, Deltona, Mrs. Herbert Hartfield, Green Laster, Mrs. Jimmie Griffin, Hinton, and Mrs. Earl Dudley, Rocky Mount, were appointed to serve on the food committee.

The Hinton Home Demonstration club will be hostess for the Annual Christmas party to be held Friday, December 4, with the Shover Springs club furnishing the decoration. The program committee appointed included Mrs. J. E. McWilliams, Hinton; Mrs. F. J. Bruce, Rocky Mount; and Mrs. Raymond Johnson, Shover Springs. The following women were appointed on the foods committee: Mrs. A. W. Stevens, Ozan-St. Paul; Mrs. Ernest Cobb, Green Laster; Mrs. J. Y. Taylor, Hopeville; Mrs. W. T. Harberry, Sweet Home; and Mrs. Eldridge Forinby, Hinton.

Missing Army Documents Bares New Plot

NEW YORK, (AP) — Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy (R-Wis) said today a "too scientist" for the Army Signal Corps had admitted taking 43 secret documents from Ft. Monmouth, N. J., to his home for "study."

McCarthy told newsmen the man described himself as a "close friend" of Julius Rosenberg, who was executed at Sing Sing prison as an atomic bomb spy for Russia.

The senator quoted the witness as saying he attended meetings of the Young Communist League with Rosenberg and that Rosenberg solicited him "repeatedly" to join the Communist Party.

Cattlemen Ask Plan Akin to 1930 Pigkilling

By OVID MARTIN

WATERTOWN, S. D. (AP) — A program somewhat akin to the little pig killing program of the 1930s was being advanced by some Great Plains cattlemen today as a means of stabilizing depressed livestock prices.

It calls for government buying upwards of six million head of cows for the purpose of reducing cattle breeding herds, and in turn cutting the number of calves that would be born in the immediate years ahead.

The government would have the cows processed into canned meat and shipped abroad for the needy.

This plan was laid before a hearing of the House Agriculture Committee here yesterday by the South Dakota Stock Growers Assn., the South Dakota Young Republican Farm Council, and a number of individual farmers. Rep. William S. Hill (R-Colo) expressed doubt it would get committee approval.

The committee is touring the Midwest seeking farmer views on legislation for future farm programs to be considered by Congress next year.

The committee headed for Norfolk, Neb., by bus today with brief stops scheduled at Brookings and Sioux Falls, S. D. Its next hearing will be held at Des Moines Friday.

In the early Roosevelt administration's New Deal days, Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace sought to bolster hog prices through government buying of little pigs and sows. The idea was to boost prices by reducing prospective pork supplies.

Meanwhile, the committee took stock of arm program views laid before it by more than 150 farm leaders and individual farmers at hearings here yesterday and at Minneapolis Monday.

A large majority urged indefinite extension of farm price supports at not less than 90 per cent of parity. Secretary of Agriculture Benson has criticized supporters at this level because he thinks they create surpluses and bring on controls by pricing products out of markets.

Mason Freed, HAC Trials Are Closed

LITTLE ROCK, (AP) — A series of trials springing from 1952 Highway Audit Commission hearings ended yesterday with the acquittal of A. D. Mason of Camden, former highway commissioner, from a charge of accepting a $500 bribe. Two other persons were acquitted and one, a Morrison automobile dealer, was convicted in two other trials arising from the HAC probe of Highway Department affairs under former Gov. McMath's administration.

A Pulaski Circuit Court jury of 10 men and two women returned a verdict of innocent after 17 minutes of deliberation.

Pulaski County Prosecutor Tom Downie filed the bribery charge against Mason last spring, contending that the 57-year-old cotton merchant and independent oil dealer had accepted a $500 campaign contribution from "Little Rock road."

Tension Grows; Ike, Dulles Talk Over Trieste

44 Die in German Plane Crash

Secretary to Leave Tonight for Conference

WASHINGTON, (AP) — President Eisenhower conferred at length with Secretary of State Dulles today in preparation for talks in London which probably will determine the next American-British move in the dangerous dispute with Yugoslavia over Trieste.

Dulles, who flies to London tonight, was with the President about 45 minutes and left by a rear door. Back at his State Department office he sent word he had nothing to say about the presidential conference.

Meanwhile, the department announced that in the afternoon would receive Italian Ambassador Alberto Tarchiani for a talk on the Trieste crisis.

Dulles spent an hour yesterday with Yugoslav Foreign Secretary Koca Popovic, after which Popovic reported that Dulles had promised urgent consideration of the Yugoslav proposal for a meeting of the United States, Britain, Italy, and Yugoslavia on Trieste. Popovic said his army will use "a 11 means" to resist the British-American decision to hand over the Allied zone of Trieste to Italy.

The Trieste issue, the necessity of final agreement of the Western Big Three on a not-for-Russia pressing for a Big Four meeting on Germany, apparently determined the precise timing of the two-day London talks opening Friday.

Dulles' meeting with British Foreign Secretary Eden and French Foreign Minister Bidault will cover the whole range of current world problems including efforts to arrange a Korean peace conference with Red China, and Prime Minister Churchill's repeated expressed interest in a top level meeting of Western government chiefs and Soviet Premier Malenkov.

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER
WASHINGTON, (AP) — Secretary of State Dulles flies to London tonight for conferences which may determine the next move by the United States and Great Britain in the explosive Trieste dispute with Yugoslavia.

U. S. officials said there is plenty of time to seek a diplomatic solution of the issue in the face of warlike threats by Yugoslavia's Marshal Tito.

They noted there is no deadline for removal of about 7,000 British and American troops from Zone A and their replacement by Italians. "Tito has said he will counter the shift in occupation," troops with force, U.S. and British diplomats alike said it would be two or three months, possibly even longer, before the change is made.

The State Department insisted Dulles' trip to London for "Big Three" foreign ministers' talks, although it came as a surprise, was not the result of any sudden emergency.

Dulles, due to leave tonight, conferred for an hour yesterday with Yugoslav Foreign Secretary Koca Popovic, who pressed his government's proposal for a meeting of the Big Four.

Merchants Plan Employee Party

The Retail Merchants Committee of the Hope Chamber of Commerce are again this year making plans and preparations to hold another employee-employer party.

The overall planning committee is headed by Mike Kelly, along with Corbin Foster and Charles Gough. The exact date for the event has not been set, but is tentatively planned for the third week in November.

The schedule for the evening calls for a banquet followed by an invited guest speaker. After the dinner speaker there will be a wide variety of entertaining activities for everybody, including dancing, and games.

The scene of the function will be well decorated and the committee on decorations is Miss Beryl Henson, decorations, Mrs. Aubrey Enoch, Mrs. J. W. Patterson, and Mrs. Opal Hervey.

Cochairmen Dewey Baber and Cecil Delaney are in charge of the arrangements for the banquet meal. Other members of this committee are yet to be named. The details of the evening's entertainment will be handled by a committee yet to be named.

Further announcements on this big party will be made as the plans and details are worked out and developed by the committees in charge.

Ballerina Claims Dancing Has a Special Award — Certainly Its Not Profitable in Money

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK (AP) — Violetta Elvin looks like a younger sister of Hedy Lamarr, eats like a railroad section hand, works like a conscientious beaver — and can't afford a martini.

"It weakens your muscles — and affects your knees," she explained. On those grounds nothing could afford a martini — something I've been saying for years, with previous little recognition, too — but it is particularly important to Violetta.

She can afford no relaxation that lowers her physical stamina. For health is vital in the spartan profession of her choice.

Violetta Elvin is a prima ballerina, and in this whole wide wonderful world of women there aren't more than two dozen who can wear that title with any truth.

It is a tough, sublime drudgery to be a prima ballerina. After talking to Violetta, a star of the Sadler's Wells Ballet from London, it is easy to see why this art is regarded as the most demanding of all.

She molds her life to her art. She doesn't smoke, rarely drinks more than a light wine, a meal takes her an hour, and she is sleeping or resting and practicing. She works at least 10 hours a day.

schoolgirls. But it isn't quite true that ballerinas are born on tiptoe. "I started training in the Holston Theater School in Moscow at 8," said Violetta, who is now 28 and still in training. "Some mothers here think their children should start toe dancing at three or four. But at that age they should only be learning to move with music."

"It is much too early for them to go on their points (or toes). They aren't strong enough. And on they cripple their feet for life trying to please their ambitious frustrated mothers."

peak condition. "We have to train more constantly than an athlete," she said, "because dancing is a year-around job. And even if you go two days without exercise — well, you can tell the difference in your next performance, whether the audience does or not."

Violetta, a slender, pale-faced, dark-haired girl, has the grace of a black leopard and is as highly turned as a nervous violin string. "I love from three to four minutes during a performance," she said, smiling. She recovers with a look of a lioness. Like most ballerinas, she has a light breakfast and two milk-meat-and-vegetable meals a day.

"There is nothing unusual about ballerinas," Violetta continued, "except that, like any artist, we can't stay still and get satisfied with ourselves. You have to keep perfecting yourself."

"You may dance a ballet role 300 times, 500 times, and still feel you don't really know it. Have I reached my peak? Oh, no. Very far from it. I feel very raw. I have to learn ... and learn ... and learn ..."

She can say this at the age of 20 after 10 years of dancing. How long can she go on?

"Pavlova died before she was 60, but she was still a ballerina," said Violetta.

In Europe a prima ballerina's take-home pay, for all her years of study and sacrifice, is less than that of an American bricklayer, unless she breaks into the movies. "It isn't as profitable as wrestling," said Violetta. "What is the reward? There is — how can I say it — always an excitement in CHICAGO (AP) — Grain in parts of the southwestern drought area washed several cents off the value of 1954 crop wheat contracts on the Board of Trade today. Soybeans also declined, largely on profit-taking but also on a drop in the price of crude soybean oil to 13 cents from 13 1/2 cents a pound yesterday. Lard in hogs was relatively small. Feed grains hovered around previous closing levels.

While July wheat, representing the 1954 crop, was down the most, other bread cereal contracts also slumped. Showers fell overnight in the Texas Panhandle northwestward to Goodland, Kan., by next for Amarillo, Tex., the moisture received was not heavy.

Wheat closed 14 3/4¢ lower, December $1.02-1.02 1/2¢, corn unchanged to 1/2¢ higher, December $1.44-1.44 1/4¢ lower, December $1.14-1.13 1/4¢, soybeans 12-11 1/4¢ lower, November 2.07-2.07 1/4¢, and hard 13 to 20 cents a hundred pounds lower, October $16.50.

NEW YORK COTTON

NEW YORK (AP) Cotton futures were irregular today. Mill buying along with commission house sales covering extended gains to about 50 cents a bale before the market eased partially on profit-taking. Hedging selling by leading spot firms was mostly made up and this was a steady influence. Nearby October futures expired at 12:30 p. m. today, with a final traded price of 32.45 cents a pound which was only five cents a bale under the previous close. Late afternoon prices were 40 cents a bale higher to 10 cents lower than the previous close, Dec. 32.74, March 33.16 and May 33.46.

tacks—"turned up" in Russian occupied East Berlin and "were used by the Communists."

"The witness admitted removing 43 documents classified as secret and admitted having them in his apartment when Army secret agents raided the house in October or November, 1946," McCarthy told newsmen's after this morning session.

McCarthy said the witness subsequently was punished with a 10-day suspension but that he "was later promoted."

The senator said the witness had a roommate who was suspended and finally fired from the Army Signal Corps because of alleged Communist activity.

"The witness gave as his excuse for removing the secret documents that it was common practice for anyone to get possession of them by signing for them," McCarthy said.

McCarthy said the subcommittee learned today that four of five additional civilians employed by the Army Signal Corps had been suspended in the past two days for alleged Communist activity.

Sen. Everett Dirksen (R-Ill.) said yesterday 28 of 50 top secret documents missing from the army signal corps laboratory at Ft. Monmouth were found in the Russian-occupied section of Germany.

In Washington, the Army said it had no information on the finding of any such papers in Germany.

McCarthy is chairman of the Senate permanent investigations subcommittee conducting closed hearings in New York into the possibility of Communist subversion at Fort Monmouth.

"We have completely convincing testimony that some of those documents on radar and other matters did turn up in East Berlin, but as to the number, I will not comment," McCarthy told newsmen prior to today's subcommittee session.

Radar is used as part of a defense network to detect the approach of enemy aircraft—in short, a defense mechanism against atom attack.

Two of five civilians technical experts who were employed at Fort Monmouth were scheduled for questioning by the subcommittee today.

They are Hyman Gerber Yambin, a radar specialist who was assigned by the Army Signal Corps to the Massachusetts Institute of Technology as a liaison officer, and Harold Ducore, an electronic engineer.

the United States, Britain, Italy and Yugoslavia on control of Trieste in light of the new U.S. foreign policy.

This policy, announced six days ago, calls for removal of American and British forces from Zone A and administration of the zone to U.S. Zone A includes the city of Trieste and some adjacent territory. Zone B, comprising the rest of the 390-square-mile area, is occupied by Yugoslav troops.

War on some scale could result if Tito carries out his threat to march into Zone A when Italian troops move in.

Italy's efforts to exploit the situation in an attempt to make the most of trouble in the loosely organized camp of anti-Soviet nations was no surprise here.

However, said Dulles, he could give no answer on the proposal for a four-nation conference because "he has to consult on that issue with the other governments concerned."

Popovic, however, quoted Dulles as promising the suggestion would be given urgent consideration. The U. S. department had no comment.

Diplomatic informants said they regarded it certain the Yugoslav proposal would be considered at London, and that no decision would be made before that.

"There was no indication thus far of any change in the U.S.-British decision to get out of Trieste and promote, if possible, a direct settlement between Yugoslavia and Italy."

organization will affect farmers and farm programs.

The reorganization plan, announced yesterday, essentially would group agencies into four big units set up on a functional basis: research and education (fed.); marketing and foreign agriculture; production programs; and farm credit (agricultural credit).

While many agencies will lose some duties and gain others, the three biggest changes are reorganization of the bureau of agricultural economics (BAE) and the production and marketing administration (PMA) and the dropping of seven regional offices of the soil conservation service.

Benson said he thought the reorganization would lead to more "localization" of farm programs and result in greater efficiency and economy.

However, a spokesman later said the "decentralization" will be more a "long-term objective" and conceded that, except for dropping the seven SCS regional offices, there were no specific "localization" steps in the general reorganization plan.

Meanwhile, Benson has hired, for $207 a week, a public relations expert, Harold Belnap, from the San Francisco firm of Bratt and Co., to help in presenting the reorganization plan — chiefly to farm groups.

AND THAT'S ONLY
THE BEGINNING!

A half century ago, on December 17, 1903, Orville Wright made the first powered heavier-than-air flight. For twelve history-making seconds he flew over Kitty Hawk in a biplane fueled by the Esso Standard Oil Company.

Since that eventful day, and on into today's new era of screaming jets and zooming rockets, Esso Standard and the rest of the Petroleum Industry have moved forward hand in hand with aviation progress.

That's just one of the reasons why this week is being celebrated throughout the nation as OIL PROGRESS WEEK.

For while ever-improving fuels and lubricants have played a vital part in this astonishingly swift conquest of the skies, so also have improved petroleum products helped bring about the infinitely finer performance of your new automobile, the cleaner, cheaper and warmer heat that you enjoy in your home, and the smoother-flowing, well-lubricated productivity of the factories that produce the things you use. And now, through progress in Petrochemicals, you are entering a new world of miracle plastics and wonder fibres — more new things to serve your needs better and cheaper than ever before.

In short, there's hardly anything that you use or wear that hasn't somehow been made a little better through Petroleum Industry Progress.

So it's no wonder that OIL PROGRESS WEEK is celebrated by the Petroleum Industry and Esso employees and dealers everywhere. It honors the kind of progress that today, for example, brings you automobile gasoline that does 50% more work per gallon than 1925 gasolines did! You'll agree there's really something to celebrate!

Kidnaping Case Still Unresolved

MICHIGAN CITY, Ind. (UP)—Today is the second anniversary of one of the most baffling child kidnapings known to police. On Oct. 13, 1951, Lawrence James Lyons, four days old, was stolen from his crib in St. Anthony's Hospital here. In the weeks and months after followed the search spread over the entire Middle West with reports all proved false—of the child appearing from many states.

No trace of the baby has been found. Police believe it is possible that a mysterious "woman in white," seen with a blue bundle nestled in her arms as she entered a hospital elevator, was the person who took him.

The baby's mother, Mrs. Frances Lyons, 38, still lives here with a little daughter, Francine Ann, born to her Sept. 18, 1952.

She is a widow. Her husband, James 42, died of a heart attack the day after his daughter was born. Mrs. Lyons never has given up

Dulles to Meet With French, British

LONDON (AP)—U. S. Secretary of State Dulles will meet in London this week with his British and French counterparts.

A U. S. Embassy spokesman confirmed this today after reports of the meeting had been heard in London.

Anthony Eden last week resumed his duties as British foreign minister. Georges Bidault heads the French foreign ministry. The U. S. Embassy said they and Dulles will meet Friday and Saturday for talks on pressing world problems.

hope that she will again see her son. "Whoever has my boy must feel awfully conscience-stricken," she said.

viously including Trieste. The meeting was summoned hurriedly. It is described as a continuation of consultations which the three foreign ministers held in Washington last July. At that time Lord Salisbury was acting British foreign minister.

Since that meeting there have been developments on the Korean situation, and the Trieste crisis has developed as a result of the U. S. and British decision to remove their occupation troops from Zone A of Trieste territory, and turn its administration over to Italy President Marshal Tito of Yugoslavia has threatened to send his troops into Zone A if Italian troops enter that area, encompassing the port of Trieste.

France supposedly was brought into the controversy today when the Yugoslav Foreign Ministry in Belgrade called in the French ambassador there. This raised speculation that France might be called upon to help smooth out the difference between Tito on the one side and the United States, Britain and

Simple Button Can Lick a U. S. Soldier

WASHINGTON (UP)—It has been said that the American soldier can lick anything in the world but a busted button.

The army does wonderful things for a man who is awkward, clumsy, unskilled and untrained. It can teach a playboy how to bug and clean a garbage can. A ballet dancer how to build a log bunker. A kid with fingers made for piano playing how to have at the enemy with a bayonet. Or it can give a Texas plainsman claustrophobia by getting him down inside a tank.

But hand anyone of these a needle, some thread and a button and he starts yanking his top-knot out by the roots. The army across the years, until now, has messed up on this vital training. And still, the services demand that all buttons be on, and all buttons buttoned.

A lot of books have been written on buttons—where they come from, etc., but very few on how to tack a four-hole to the front of a man's shirt.

A soldier can stand long marches along the dusty trail. He is willing to master any obstacle course, or sweat out the fire of the foe. He can polish his brass. He can clean his rifle so well that he can see himself in the mirror of the barrel.

But buttons! Quartermaster laundries commonly are operated by guys who were in the laundry business in civilian life. These fellows know no buttons through the ironing process but still leaving them intact.

But now, the kids can relax. Now appearing in army post exchanges around the world is a button that answers the GI's prayer.

These buttons, with head loops of brown thread through the four holes, can be clipped to army shirts and pants. To the platoon leader they look for all the world like sewed-on buttons.

Behind the buttons are the sword like metal prongs which are pushed through the cloth—without damaging it—and bent double. An old trick put to a new use.

Italy on the other, Moscow, meanwhile, has served notice of its dissatisfaction with the Trieste situation.

Wants Federal Reserve Study

WASHINGTON (UP)—Rep. Wright Patman (D-Tex.) today asked the new Hoover reorganization commission to make a thorough study of the nation's federal reserve system.

Patman asked the study group to see if power over money and credit is held in "the private hands of those steeped in private banking traditions rather than in the hands of persons with a development understanding of public service." He referred to the makeup of the federal reserve's open market committee.

In a letter to former President Herbert Hoover, chairman of the revised government reorganization commission, Patman asked if the committee is "sufficiently responsive to overall government policy and the public interest." Patman also asked what useful purpose is served by the fiction of private ownership of the federal reserve system since most of the elements of control have been stripped from member banks owning federal reserve bank stock with only the privilege of assured dividends remaining.

Taxes Absorb Big Bite of Incomes

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Department of Commerce said today that about 45 per cent of total family income in 1950 was absorbed by federal income taxes.

The department said some 48½ million "consumer units" of families in 1950 had 217 billion dollars income. Before taxes, the average family income was $4,400 but after taxes it was $2,900.

The national average before-tax income of families and unattached individuals was $4,400 but one third of the consumer units received more than the average. About 6 per cent had incomes of $10,000 and over, and 23 per cent had incomes of less than $2,000.

About 95 per cent of 1950 income was received by consumer units with incomes over $2,000. These figures were drawn from a comprehensive report by the department on the distribution of income in the war and postwar periods.

The analysis shows these among

At Least 16 Claimed Part in Kidnaping

TULSA, Okla. (AP)—At least 16 selves as the kidnapers of little Bobby Greenlease and demanded ransom ranging from $5,000 to $500,000.

This was disclosed in an interview last night with Robert L. Lederman, Tulsa auto dealer and business associate of the 8-year-old murdered child's father, Robert C. Greenlease of Kansas City.

Still grieving over the tragedy and exhausted from 10 days of fruitless vigil, Lederman told the story after returning home for the first time since Sept. 28. That was the day his multimillionaire partner and friend issued a plea for help when Bobby was kidnapped from school.

It was a head-breaking vigil, he said—10 days and nights of frustration, virtually without sleep. Lederman said he arrived in Kansas City at 8 p. m. the day of the crime.

Thirty minutes later he said the family received a special delivery letter from Carl Austin Hall who with Mrs. Bonnie Brown Heady confessed the kidnaping, demanding $500,000 ransom.

It stipulated that $400,000 was to be in $20 bills and 200,000 in $10 bills, the money to be obtained in equal portions from all 12 federal reserve banks.

Texas research indicates that cotton stalks should be shredded and plowed under as soon as the cotton is harvested in order to control insects.

other breakdown figures: Federal income taxes in 1950 took 8 per cent of incomes in the $7,500-$10,000 class. Families or unattached individuals with incomes of $10,000 and over paid about 19 per cent income tax.

The top 20 per cent of consumer units received about 48 per cent of income before taxes, paid 70 per cent of total federal income taxes, and had about 44 per cent of total income after taxes. The top 5 per cent of consumer units, which had incomes over $10,000 in 1950, received 20 per cent of the before-tax income, paid 47 per cent of total taxes and had 18 per cent of total after-tax income.

Red Heads Don't Cry

CHAPTER FIFTEEN

PHIL HAD hardly spoken when Larry, Patrick was standing at their table.

"You two—again?"

Larry was visibly excited over something. He spoke to Phil.

"Some bombshell in that suit against your dad's company, wasn't it? Gosh, I almost got an exclusive story for the last column."

Phil set down his glass.

"Bombshell? What bombshell?"

Larry poured out his latest, almost exclusive story. During a court recess that afternoon, a bailiff found an envelope in the court corridor. It contained an offer, at a price, to supply confidential information to the attorneys fighting Spencer and Charles in the lawsuit against the Stanley Construction company.

Whoever had dropped it evidently hadn't dared to approach those for whom it was intended.

Larry said there was some dirty work going on somewhere, that someone must have gotten some inside dope through thievery. He said discovery of the envelope brought a halt to the case by court order. He said investigation by the district attorney was a certainty.

Nancy Kelly slept hardly a wink that night.

The atmosphere in the office of Spencer and Charles the next morning was anything but calm.

Humphrey Charles was at his desk when Nancy arrived. He and other members of the firm were in conference in his private office. Girls in the office exchanged knowing glances and found a dozen reasons that called for little conferences of their own.

Lucy Wardle was paler, more frightened than ever. Once she had stopped in the ante room where Nancy alone held sway over the room and office switchboard, to whisper to Nancy.

"Isn't it awful, what do you think is going to happen?"

Nancy didn't know what was going to happen. Lucy's question came near to being the last straw that broke Nancy's determination to keep a cool exterior though she was tormented with worry. She had all she could do to keep from standing up and screaming at Lucy that she didn't know WHAT was going to happen.

If Sam Sykes was involved in a plot to sell information so vital in litigation against the Stanley Construction company, exposure would probably follow, and exposure of him would mean discovery that Nancy had taken the precious information out of the office.

In addition to the stigma that would come to the Kelly family through her brother-in-law, she envisioned herself accused as an accomplice of Sam's, without a job, even sent to jail. Her imagination was running away with her.

At lunch time Lucy timidly inquired if she and Nancy might not go to lunch together. Nancy made some kind of an excuse. She hardly knew what she was saying. She wanted to be alone.

Poor Lucy.

Nancy knew that she was treating her wretchedly. Sometimes Lucy made Nancy think of a nondescript dog that is yelled at to "get out" only to return in abject adoration of the one who yelled.

Today Lucy was Nancy's outlet, just as Nancy sometimes was the safety valve for Humphrey Charles' irritability.

During her lunch hour Nancy walked through the noonday crowds on Wisconsin avenue and hardly saw anybody. Before she was aware of it she was at Juneau park standing before the statue of Leif Ericson. Leif, with hand shadowing his eyes, the symbol of bravery and courage looking into the future. Nancy felt that she had to talk to someone, so she talked to Leif.

Leif had bronze hair, lips. He couldn't hear, he couldn't answer. Yet he was something to talk to.

"What should I do, Leif?" Should I tell Humphrey Charles that I suspect the confidential information leaked out?"

She answered for Leif. "Don't be silly. He'd have Sam Sykes and you arrested. You'd lose your job. The Kelly's would be disgraced."

"Should I go to Sam Sykes and accuse him of snooping in papers I brought home, even stealing?"

"You'd better not. You aren't sure that Sam Sykes DID steal the information."

"Should I just keep still and hope the thing will blow over, and keep an eye on Sam? After all, it is a shame to suspect a man who might be innocent."

"Yes, just keep quiet. The whole thing may blow over. After all, the precious information didn't get beyond an offer picked up in an envelope by a court bailiff. It all might be a hoax."

"Still, I am worried, Leif."

"Silly to worry yourself into a state of foolish guilt."

Nancy debated with Leif Ericson, a man who lived nearly a thousand years ago, and she felt better. She knew that the answers Leif gave were the answers of her own heart trying to stifle fear.

She arrived back at the office five minutes late. Humphrey Charles was waiting for her.

He said the district attorney wanted to see her.

Nancy's heart skipped a beat. "Am I arrested?"

Humphrey Charles told her not to be frightened; she wasn't arrested. He said that facts of the attempted offer to sell confidential information held by the court as non-admissible in a civil lawsuit, had been placed before the district attorney. He was investigating. He had invited various people into his office for questioning.

"Invited?"

Nancy's exclamation brought a suggestion of a smile to Humphrey Charles' thin lips.

"That's the word, Miss Kelly. He said he wished to see you at three o'clock."

Nancy didn't even know where the district attorney's office was until she learned from Lucy Wardle that it was in the Safety Building. She realized with a sinking feeling that the Safety Building was the place that housed the jail, the criminal courts and the office of the chief of police.

Perhaps she was walking into a trap.

On the way to the building, she tried to visualize the kind of man the district attorney might be. By the time she entered his office, she had built up a picture of a huge, dark and scowling man with a voice like a rumble of thunder.

"Mr. Anger will see you, Miss Kelly."

So that was his name—Anger. Nancy hoped the district attorney wouldn't live up to his name. She squared her shoulders. She entered Mr. Anger's office. There was no huge, dark scowling man in the room. There was a pleasant faced, young, light haired man. He had keen blue eyes. He spoke politely, quietly, without thunder.

"Of course you know, Miss Kelly, your coming here is entirely voluntary. I asked you to come but you were not compelled to. There is no warrant or anything like that."

"Yes, sir."

"I want you to understand that your answer to any questions that I may ask are entirely voluntary. Under your constitutional rights you need not answer if you do not wish to."

"Yes, sir."

"Now then, there is cause to believe that some attempt was made to reveal facts that a civil court judge had held to be confidential between attorneys you work for and a certain client of theirs."

"Yes, sir."

"The confidential matter concerned is kept in files in the office in which you are employed."

"Yes, sir."

"Who has access to those files?"

"I do. Possibly some other people in the office. Members of the firm, naturally."

"Did anyone outside your office ever approach you relative to any thing in those files?"

"No, sir."

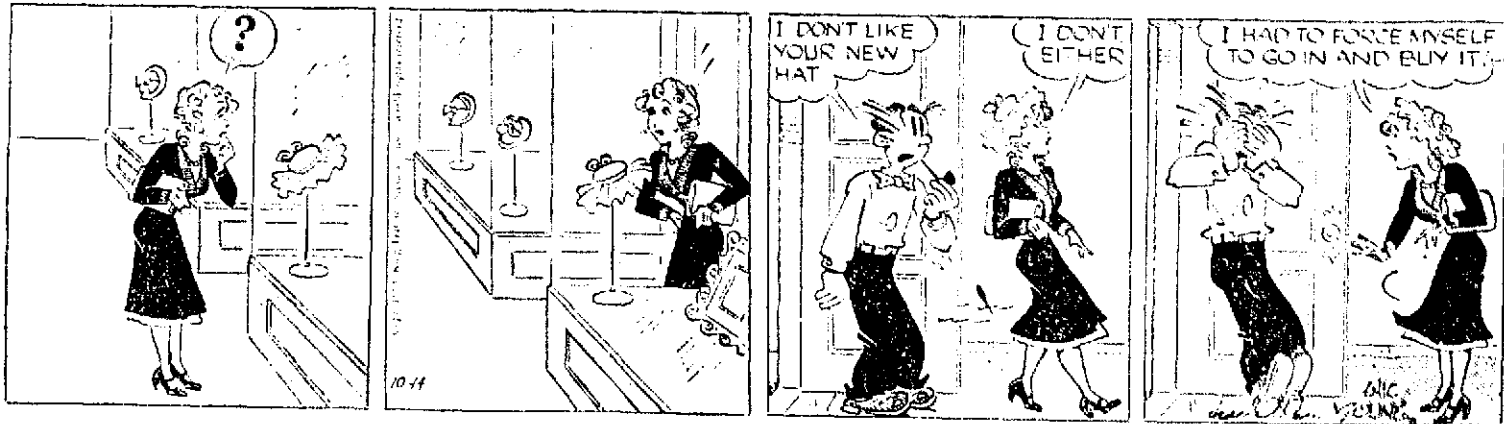

"Just one more question. Have you any suspicion who might have gotten access to the files besides yourself and other employees in your office?"

"No, sir."

"That's all. Thank you, Mr. Kelly. Back in the street Nancy remembered that she had been talking to Leif Ericson. She had forgotten she was talking to Leif Ericson."

FBI Searches for $300,000 Missing

ST. LOUIS, Mo. — FBI agents today continued their search for the missing $300,000 ransom money in the Bobby Greenhouse kidnapping case after drug addict Carl Austin Hall and his woman friend confessed to the premeditated slaying of the 12-year-old boy.

Hall and Mrs. Louise Brown, 37, were returned to Kansas City to stand trial.

Hall admitted yesterday he fired a pistol bullet into the boy's head after driving him across the Missouri-Kansas state line from Kansas City shortly after the kidnapping.

The government filed charges today under the Lindbergh kidnapping law immediately after the couple's confession. A federal grand jury will be convened to hear the charges.

The admissions cleared the missing money John Marsh, 37, ex-convict named earlier by Hall as Bobby's father.

Jackson County Prosecutor Richard Phelps agreed to let the federal government prosecute the two kidnappers. State charges had previously been filed.

Conviction carries a possible death penalty.

The FBI said Hall and his woman friend admitted they dug Bobby's shallow grave behind Mrs. Heady's St. Joseph, Mo., home before the kidnapping.

More than $250,000 of the ransom money, in $10 and $20 bills, was in the apartment-hotel room where Hall was seized. Hall claims he doesn't know what happened to the rest of the $300,000 ransom.

Bobby apparently was killed in Mrs. Heady's station wagon after the couple had driven him to a point near U. S. Highway 69 in Kansas 12 miles from Kansas City.

A bullet found lodged in the blood-stained car was shown by ballistic tests to have been fired from a .38-caliber revolver taken from Hall upon his arrest here.

FBI agents were reportedly still searching a wheat field near the murder scene for the bullet which killed the boy. A mechanical pencil, advertising one of the automobile agencies operated by Robert C. Greenhouse Sr., 71-year-old father of the boy, was found at the scene. Bobby was known to have been carrying a pencil of this type.

Marsh's whereabouts still remained a mystery. There has been speculation he may be dead.

A St. Joseph attorney, Bernard Patton, said yesterday Hall made two telephone calls to him in an effort to cover up his trial.

Patton said he got the call Oct. 5, the day after Hall collected the ransom and the day before Hall and Mrs. Heady were arrested in St. Louis.

Patton said Hall asked him to request a rental agency to change its records so they would not show Mrs. Heady rented a car from the firm.

The car was not the one used in the abduction.

Patton also said he received a

Soldier Expensive to U. S. Army

FORT CAMPBELL, Ky., (AP)—Pvt. Allen Mowdy, upon whom the Army says it has spent more than $30,000, was confined in the stockade here today following an escape from a train in Arkansas.

Mowdy arrived under guard from Portland, Ore.

The soldier disappeared from Fort Campbell Aug. 7 and was believed drowned. A battalion of soldiers, aided by aircraft, searched for his body around Kentucky Lake.

Army spokesmen estimated the "rescue" operations cost about $30,000.

But Mowdy turned up in Oklahoma City, posing the Army said, as an orphaned football star in search of a team. Several coaches were interested until they found out he was an AWOL soldier.

The Army sent two guards to Oklahoma City to return Mowdy to Fort Campbell, but he eluded them by jumping train at Oak Grove, Ark.

Then he went to Portland to visit his mother. She turned him in.

Farmers Have Good Season for Harvest

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. —Arkansas farmers, blessed with ideal harvest weather, have been able to make good progress in getting cotton, rice, soybeans and feed grains out of the fields during the week ending today.

The Federal-State Crop Reporting Service said in its weekly crop report that half of the cotton had been picked and that harvest of the other two main cash crops — rice and soybeans — is well underway.

The agency said, however, that most of the state remains very dry and that this condition is hampering the seeding of fall grains and causing some young plants to die.

The hot, dry weather has resulted in cotton opening very fast and most of the major producing counties need additional labor.

In many instances, the crop is yielding better than expected; the line is grading high.

The Crop Reporting Service said the rice harvest is about half complete in some of the main producing counties with good yields reported.

Soybeans now are being combined in most counties and harvest soon will be in full swing.

On the dark side, pastures are furnishing practically no feed. Many cattle are losing flesh and marketing continues heavy at low prices.

Harvest of early corn for grain is nearing completion in some areas and a poor crop of late corn is about ready for harvest in many counties.

Stands are poor on many strawberry beds in all areas. There is practically no crop of fall vegetables except on irrigated lands. Harvest of sweet potatoes continues in south Arkansas.

Gov. Cherry Lauds Competitive Bidding

JACKSON, Miss., (AP)—Gov. Francis Cherry of Arkansas described open competitive bidding as a system in which "favors to special political friends go out the window" to the Association of Purchasing Agents national meeting here yesterday.

He outlined Arkansas' new purchasing plan as a program to rid the state government of wasteful spending.

He explained that the idea is to contract for long-term supplies rather than piece-meal purchasing in small quantities, adding:

"We have emerged from the rubble of the Civil War and have thrown off the cautious inferiority complex that so long beset us in the south. Our future looks toward prosperity and stabilized economy."
